Kidnapped by Robert Louis Stevenson

Kidnapped is a stirring adventure story about the orphan, David Balfour, who, after escaping through the Scottish Highlands from the hands of his villainous uncle, becomes involved in Scotland's struggle for independence.

The Boys of Winter by Wayne Coffey

The true story of the victory by the U.S. men's hockey team over the vaunted Soviets in the 1980 Winter Olympics is still as luminous and improbable as it was nearly 35 years ago: a group of plucky but not overwhelmingly gifted young amateurs, whose style of play is overhauled by their mercurial but visionary coach Herb Brooks, taking on the virtually unbeatable Soviet pros on their way to a gold medal.

Swimming to Antarctica: Tales of a Long-Distance Swimmer by Lynne Cox

Cox, one of the world's leading long-distance swimmers, has been a risk-taker ever since she was nine. It isn't until she competes in the Nile River swim that the tale turns ugly. She's swimming in raw sewage and chemical waste, fending off dead rats and broken glass. Undeterred, she plans more ambitious swims – around the shark-infested Cape of Good Hope. Cox ends her story with her swim to Antarctica.

The Giver by Lois Lowry

Given his lifetime assignment at the Ceremony of Twelve, Jonas becomes the receiver of memories shared by only one other in his community and discovers the terrible truth about the society in which he lives.
